

---

Sexual abuse - helping your child

---

Summary

- You have a vital role in helping your child recover from sexual abuse.
  - You are not responsible for the abuse. The abuser is the only person responsible.
  - This is an extremely difficult time, so seek help and look after your needs, as well as your child's needs.
-

As a parent, you have an important role in helping your child recover from sexual abuse. There are ways to help your child and yourself through this difficult experience.

Helping your child recover from sexual abuse

Your role in helping your child recover is crucial. They will need your ongoing support, belief and protection.

It will be helpful if you try to:

- Spend time with your child.
- Accept that your child may be acting differently.
- Respect your child's wishes and be sensitive to their emotional needs.

Speaking with your child about sexual abuse

The most important message to get across to your child is that you do not blame them for the abuse.

Do:

- Tell them you believe them.
- Reassure and support them.
- Tell them you do not blame them.
- Tell them you will try to keep them safe.
- Let them know you love them.
- Let them know you are glad they told you.
- Give them time to talk at their own pace.
- Make time to spend with your child so you can talk privately.
- Be open and clear.
- Allow your child to talk about how they feel.
- Try to be calm when talking with your child, as they may be confused by anger.
- Try to understand as much as you can about the effects of child sexual abuse so that you can best support yourself and your child.

Don't:

- blame your child for what happened
- suggest that it would have been better if they had not told anyone
- tell your child that you blame yourself
- tell your child to forget it ever happened
- tell your child not to talk about it
- get upset when your child talks about the abuse.

Look after yourself

This is a very difficult time and you need to take care of yourself so that you can cope and be there to help your child.

It may help if you:

- talk to a counsellor, close friend or to other parents of children who have been sexually abused
- look after your health
- organise some time out for yourself.

Where to get help

- Sexual Assault Crisis Line (Vic.) Tel. 1800 806 292 (24 hours)
- 1800 RESPECT (Australia). Tel. 1800 737 732
- Victorian Centres Against Sexual Assault
- If your family is involved with a Child Protection worker, speak to them about support services
- Local community health centre

This page has been produced in consultation with and approved by:

DHHS - Child protection

Content on this website is provided for information purposes only. Information about a therapy, service, product or treatment does not in any way endorse or support such therapy, service, product or treatment and is not intended to replace advice from your doctor or other registered health professional. The information and materials contained on this website are not intended to constitute a comprehensive guide concerning all aspects of the therapy, product or treatment described on the website. All users are urged to always seek advice from a registered health care professional for diagnosis and answers to their medical questions and to ascertain whether the particular therapy, service, product or treatment described on the website is suitable in their circumstances. The State of Victoria and the Department of Health & Human Services shall not bear any liability for reliance by any user on the materials contained on this website.

For the latest updates and more information, visit www.betterhealth.vic.gov.au

Copyright © 1999/2019 State of Victoria. Reproduced from the Better Health Channel (www.betterhealth.vic.gov.au) at no cost with permission of the Victorian Minister for Health. Unauthorised reproduction and other uses comprised in the copyright are prohibited without permission.